Climate Policies Must Reflect Ground-Level Realities and People's Experiences

Climate Policies Should Reflect Ground-Level Realities and People's Experiences

Hyderabad, TRINET NEWS, November 9:

Telangana Minister N. Uttam Kumar Reddy emphasised that climate change policies must reflect ground-level realities, public concerns and practical solutions to environmental challenges.

Reviewing preparations for the proposed International Climate Summit, the Minister suggested organising a special consultation meeting on November 28 with approximately 100 representatives from various sectors.

He said the consultation should gather opinions from communities directly affected by climate change and ensure their experiences are reflected in discussions at the international summit.

Uttam Kumar Reddy stressed that the conference should not be limited to expert presentations and technical discussions. Instead, successful grassroots initiatives and community-driven environmentalprogrammesshould receive greater attention.

Highlighting local success stories, hereferredtogroundwaterrecharge initiativesundertakenbyaresidentialcommunityinManikonda and afforestation and soil conservation programmes at Kanha Shanti Vanam.

Two-Day Summit to Focus on Key Climate Challenges

The Minister proposed conducting the international summit over two days, with focused discussions on critical environmental issues.

He suggested prioritising drought preparedness, El Niño impacts, water security, groundwater conservation,climateresilience, afforestation, desertification prevention, soil protection and pollution control.

Other important subjects would include renewable energy, climate financing and waste-to-wealth initiatives.

Uttam Kumar Reddy emphasised that the summit must produce clearly defined objectives, practical recommendations and measurable results rather than numerous speeches and discussions.

He called for identifying successful community-based environmental projects and developing strategies to replicate them across other regions.

The Minister said meaningful public participation, scientific expertise and coordinated government action were essential for building climate resilience.

He expressed hope that the summit would become an effective platform for transforming environmental discussions into sustainable action plans benefiting farmers, communities and future generations.

Cancer Medicine Prices Slashed; Patients to Save 3,540 Crore Annually

Revised Prices of 1,364 Anti-Cancer Formulations Take Effect Across India

New Delhi, TRINET NEWS, November 9:

In a major relief to cancer patients and their families, the Central Government has implemented revised maximum retail prices for 1,364 anti-cancer medicine formulations from November 9, 2026.

The National Pharmaceutical Pricing Authority (NPPA), functioning under the Department of Pharmaceuticals, introduced measures to regulate trade margins and make essential cancer medicines more affordable.

According to official figures, 85 pharmaceutical companies have reported revised prices for 1,364 formulations covering 121 anti-cancer drugs.

Of these, 679 brands have recorded price reductions exceeding 50 percent. The highest reported reduction stands at 96.45 percent.

The government estimates that the revised prices could generate annual savings of approximately 3,540.38 crore for consumers.

Officials said the initiative would reduce financial pressure on patients undergoing cancer treatment, particularly families facing high medical expenditure.

Consumers have been advised to check the revised prices printed on medicine packs and verify prices through the Pharma Sahi Daam mobile application or NPPA website.

Hospitals and pharmacies are prohibited from charging more than the applicable revised maximum retail prices.

Patients can report overcharging through the Pharma Jan Samadhan portal or NPPA's consumer helpline.

The decision represents a significant step towards improving affordability and access to cancer treatment across India.
